Technology at work for you

In a business where every step depends on the one before, subcontract management and project collaboration are absolute necessities. Your construction management software must be able to coordinate project management teams with accounting, but without duplicating data entry. This should be done without sacrificing real-time project data or security requirements, while maintaining a high level of subcontract processing. eCMS, as a fully integrated solution, starts with job cost projection and ends at project completion.

eCMS provides flexible reporting of actual costs vs. budget, committed costs and critical cost to completion analysis to keep you informed. Now, the ability to effectively manage the entire project is integrated into one powerful construction management software solution.

Leading general contractors are leveraging technology solutions to enhance the productivity and efficiency of their teams—both at the field level and in the office. Now is the time to make technology work for you.
