The Associated General Contractors of America and Computer Guidance Establish Partnership

Computer Guidance Becomes The Premier And Recommended Solution Provider For The AGC

Scottsdale, Arizona – April 27, 2010 – Computer Guidance Corporation, the leading developer of financial and project management software solutions for architecture, engineering and construction companies, today announced forming a strategic partnership with the Associated General Contractors of America. AGC, the leading national construction trade association of America, welcomes Computer Guidance as a member of its Affinity Program.

As an Affinity Member of the AGC, Computer Guidance Corporation becomes the premier provider of financial and project management solutions and services for AGC members. Computer Guidance provides architecture, engineering and construction companies with the opportunity to improve operational efficiencies, increase productivity and manage their profitability more effectively and, through this partnership, will provide these services to AGC members with special pricing.

“This program will make it easier for our members to embrace innovative technology solutions to improve their business operations,” said Chris Monek, senior executive director, business development, programs & industry relations of the Associated General Contractors of America. “This is exactly the type of benefit we work every day to give our members the competitive edge they need to succeed.”

“This agreement represents a joint collaboration between two industry-leading organizations that are committed to growing our industry and communities. As a result of this partnership, our mutual customers will greatly benefit from continued innovation and augmented services offerings.” stated Roger D. Kirk, President/CEO, Computer Guidance Corporation.
