Computer Guidance Concludes A Successful User Conference

Over 200 customers, partners, industry experts participate in Customer Focus 2010

Scottsdale, Arizona – August 5, 2010 – Computer Guidance Corporation, the leading developer of financial and project management software solutions for architecture, engineering and construction companies, concludes its Customer Focus 2010 user conference held at the Phoenician Resort & Spa in Scottsdale, Arizona during the week of July 19th with great success.

The 24th annual customer user conference was an important opportunity to learn about industry trends, network with industry-leading organizations, partners, and customers, and share Computer Guidance's newest product developments and in-depth utilization of its solutions and services. The conference attendees had the chance to participate in more than 40 informative sessions, hands-on application learning center appointments, one-on-one product demonstrations, keynote presentations from notable leaders, round table and open forum discussions and partner exhibitions.

"This conference was an investment well made and we are planning on attending in 2011. The event was one of the most professional, well-organized and informative conferences that I have been involved in. The content was on target and we are looking forward to impacting our organization's performance with the wealth of information received." Steve Marentis, President, Sound Refrigeration and Air Conditioning, Inc.

"At Computer Guidance, our executive leadership places great emphasis on listening to our customers and prioritizing feedback to drive a customer-centric corporate strategy across the entire organization," stated Roger D. Kirk, President/CEO, Computer Guidance Corporation. "This event provided us with the appropriate platform for doing so and we are incorporating the customer feedback received to deliver continued improvements and build long-term partnerships with our customers."

Computer Guidance Corporation thanks all the attendees and sponsors for participating in this year's conference and is looking forward to Customer Focus 2011, the company's 30th anniversary celebration.
