Computer Guidance Welcomes LEVESYS into JDM Technology Group

JDM Technology Group Announces Continued Operational and Geographical Expansion through Acquisition

Scottsdale, Arizona – November 2, 2015 – Computer Guidance Corporation, the leading developer of ERP software solutions for the construction industry, today announced that its parent company, JDM Technology Group, has completed the acquisition of LEVESYS, expanding its construction software market share in Australia.

LEVESYS will be run as a separate company with dedicated resources delivering their innovative enterprise software solutions to their clients across Australia. This acquisition bolsters JDM Technology Group's global leadership position and results in the largest market share of enterprise construction software on the continent.

"We are pleased to share with our employees, customers and partners that JDM Technology Group has acquired LEVESYS, one of the leading construction software solution providers in Australia", stated Mike Bihlmeier, President, Computer Guidance Corporation. "This transaction again demonstrates JDM Technology Group's accelerated growth strategy and continued investment in the construction industry. These acquisitions aid our collective efforts in business development and product innovation, as they allow our sister companies to collaborate and quickly deliver new technologies to our respective clients while growing our overall market share."
